The Homing Heart.

How my homing heart still hungers
For those garden days of mine,
'Midst the spicy pink and mignonette
And scented egiantine,
Where the old-world fashioned flowers
In a fragrant riot ran.
While the nightingales piped sweeter
Than the seven Pipes of Pan.

Ah, the dream-thronged, perfumed garden. With its honeysuckle dew;
How we used to love and linger.
Where the starry jasmine grow.
Still the breath that stirred the sweetness. Where the velicd moss roses start,
Keaps its subtle echoes calling.
To my hungry homing heart.

There the wild bees reveled, happy,
In an Eden all their own,
With their dreamy, drowsy droning,
Like a tender monotone.
And I know that where the jasmine
Wreathes its gleaming blossom free,
There's a star of hope still shining
For my homing heart and me.

Will Meet at Mt. Vernon.,

Will Meet at Mt. Vernon.

The regent and vice-regents of the Mount Vernon Association, says Town and Country, are to meet at Mount Vernon May second and third, when several new appointments will be made to all vacancies from several States.

A vice-regent will be appointed from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in place of Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, who died several years aso. Mrs. Mitchell was well known to prominent residents of the East, as her beautiful winter home, near Jackson-ville. Fla., was a show place in that section, and she constantly entertained there.

ville, Fig., was a single place of there.

The Mount Vernon Association was formed prior to the Civil War. Its regency, a life office, is held by Mrs. Howard Townsend, of New York. It will be remembered that the garden and grounds about the historic mansion were restored to their original quaint beauty five or six years ago by Miss Beatrix Jones, daughter of Mrs. Cadwallader Jones, of New York, whose skill as a landscape gardener is undenlable.

Different members of the association have given large sums of money toward the improvement of the grounds, among them being Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, of Sas Francisco, vice-regent from California, who gave twenty-five thousand dollars to build the sea-wall of solid granite which now protects the grounds from the encroachments of the Potomac River. In Washington's day a wooden pler was erected, which, of course, disintegrated in time. The last great personage to be entertained at Mount Vernon was Prince Henry of Prussia, who placed a wreath on the first President's tomb, and, close by, planted a linden.

Miss Ellen Glasgow, of Richmend, says the Virginia Pilot, of Norfolk, Va., one of Virginia's most brilliant writers and novellists, is now the guest of Mrs. Westmore Wilcox in Ghent. This week she will be with her sister, Mrs. Frank T. Clarke, in York Street.

The Norfolk Dispatch, of Saturady afternoon, adds: The usual Monday reception of the Norfolk Woman's Club will be rendered distinctive this week by the presence of Miss Ellen Glasgow, of Richmend. Her visit is a source of both pleasure and pride to the club which those who are fortunate enough to attend on Monday will appreciate for Norfolk shares the feeling of Richmend for this thoroughly gifted and brilliant woman of letters. #### TO THE CUCKOO

By JOHN LOGAN.

John Legan was been in Sectional in 1743. He wrote lyric poems and published his poems in collaboration with Michael Bruce in 1770. This double volume of poems led probably to the confusion of the authorably of the "Ode to the Cockoo." The question is still debated, but the poem is generally attributed to Logan. He died in 1783 at London.

Hall beauteous stranger of the grovel
Thou messenger of Spring!
Now Heaven repairs thy rural seat,
And woods thy welcome ring.

What time the daisy decks the green, Thy certain voice we hear; Hast thou a star to guide thy path, Or mark the rolling year?

Delightful visitanti with thee
I hall the time of flowers.
And hear the sound of music sweet
From birds among the bowers. Sweet bird! thy bower is ever green,

Thy sky is over clear;
Thou hast no sorrow in thy song,
No winter in thy year! O, could I fly. I'd fly with thee! We'd make, with joyful wing, Our annual visit ce'r the globe, Companions of the Spring.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

"Childhood" (F. A. Stokes Company), by Mrs. Theodors W. Birney, founder of the National Mothers' Congress, is a simple little book, but an eminently well-written, sensible and practicable one. In a seelety in which for too many young people marry without defaulte filness for, or comprehension of, the responsibilities of parenthood, it would seem that the wide circulation of such a book of sane and sound advice would be a distinct general advantage. Mrs. Birney treats of a wide range of topics—"Amusements," "Fresh Air and Good Respiration," "Obedience and Punishment," "Individuality," "Manners," "Temperament and Disching" and upon all of them the author has something to say which is worth listening to and which most parents would read to their advantage. (Bell Book and Stationery Company, Richmond).

As an instance of the activities of the modern publisher an connection with successful books of fiction, it is interesting to note that a fourth edition of Booth Tarkington's Conquest of Canaan is now being shipped to Australia by the Harpers. That the novel would be exceedingly successful in America and England was only to be expected, but it must be gratifying to Mr. Tarkingtou to have a practically new audience taking so enthusiastically to his work.

Now that a Dickens "boom" has been predicted by several publishers on both sides of the Atlantic. It is significant to note many indications of an ever-growing interest in Scott. Recently two valuable bloggaphies have appeared, two more announced for the coming season, and a new edition of Spott's novels is being prepared by the Harpers for issue in May. In view of the present popularity of the author of Waverly, it would be a graceful thing, as Clement K. Shorter suggested in a recent number of the London Sphere, for the English government to, confer a haronetey upon the present Walter Scott; who is the great-great-grandson of Sir Walter.

Walter.

The Baker & Taylor Company have issued in attractive dress "Landscape Painting and Modern Dutch Artists." by E. B. Greensfields, author of the "Subjective View of Landscape Painting," of which the present volume is an outgrowth. "Landscape Painting," gives a short and concise history of that branch of art from the general awakening of the thirteenth century to the recent French intrpressionists and the modern revival in Holland. Mr. Greenfields emphasizes the fact that a strong subjective element is found in the work of all the principal landscape artists, resulting in. the expressive upon the canvasses of each of the particular manner in which he was affected by mature. The book is comprehensively written, with forty-five full-nace illustrations, and should be both helpful and interesting to the art lover and student. Hunter & Co, sell the book here.

McClure-Phillips are to bring out in book form "A Sailor of Fortune." being the brief life history of Cant. B. S. Osbon, which began in the August aumber of Pearson's Magazine, and will be concluded in July next. The demand for this interesting serial has been something phenomenal in increasing the circulation of the magazine. Soveral leaning book publishers endeavored to secure the right of the story, but McClure result of his experiences with New York.

"More Stories of Married Life" is the title of Mary Stewart Cutting's new volume that McClure-Phillips announce for publication early in April. About four years ago Mrs. Cutting first showed how extremely moving are the little tragedles and comedies of commuter life, and she discovered for us at the same time the romance that lies in the days that follow marriage. Her first volume moved thousands of readers by its strangely intimate and human touches. There could be no better recommendation for this new volume than the fact that it is of the same stuff and a worthy successor to that first group of stories.
